What everyone have to know when communicating with horse to stay alive and not hurt.

Horseback riding is considered a rugged adventure sport and security rules in it are mostly created from bad experience, that's why it is extremely essential to know and strictly follow these rules.

- 1. Please respect the experience of our guides and instructors and try to follow their instructions immediately without hesitation.
- 2. Approaching the horse, especially from the back, please talk with it because otherwise it can be taken by surprise, frightened and as a result you can be kicked.
- 3. Communicating with the horse you must be calm, straight, but on no terms rough. Never be afraid of the horse because then she will feel it and get nervous.
- 4. Taking the horse by the rains through the narrow space like gates, doorways etc. go in front of the horse and watch out that the doors are wide open, that horse don't stuck and get frightened. In that case it can hurt you and itself.
- 5. Going behind the other horse, keep distance that you or your horse are not kicked.
- 6. To mount the horse in the stable is extremely dangerous.
- 7. When you are riding or even communicating with a horse be alert.
- 8. In difficult situations do not think that you will fall. Think how to stay in the saddle and manage the horse.
- 9. If you have fallen do not jump up immediately, let the horse run few steps. So you will avoid a possible kick by back legs.
- 10. Never tie reins to your hands, or put them around the neck etc..
- 11. Riding in the countryside:
 - a. don't go too close to the trees. Horse doesn't count your legs, about them you must think yourself,
 - b. Don't go under the low branches. You can hurt Your back.
 - c. don't try to break the branches. If the branch will not break it can sweep you off the horse, or hit the rider who is following you.
 - d. never ever, full run or race your horses! This can be extremely dangerous and hazardous to you, the horse, and all others on the trail.

Always obey the rules of the Club, and you will have a very fun time.

Disobeying the rules, like running and racing the horses, switching the horses with someone else without a permission, showing off, and not staying alert at all times, can and do result in serious injury or death at times.

Please, never overestimate your experience or your ability.
